An Equity Lens on School Discipline Law & Policy

A discussion on the ways in which law and policy in school discipline creates and exacerbates school inequity for historically marginalized students

DR. TIFFANY PUCKETT

Dr. Tiffany Puckett teaches education law in the College of Education and the College of Law at Northern Illinois University. She is a former school attorney and her research interests look at how education law and policy impacts marginalized students.

ELIZABETH MCINTYRE

Elizabeth McIntyre is Senior Counsel at the EdLaw Project where she trains and mentors children's appointed counsel in delinquency and child welfare cases, and represents court-involved young people in school discipline and related special education cases.
