BOSTON COLLEGE, Chestnut Hill, Massachusetts (1976 – 2000)

Dean and Professor Emerita, Graduate School of Social Work (2000 - present)

Dean and Professor, Graduate School of Social Work (1976 – 2000)

Provided leadership for the growth in quality and size of the Graduate School of Social Work. The student body size increased five-fold to over 500; the annual operating budget more than tripled; and the level of externally funded research and training grants grew significantly. Established distance education, and associated infrastructure, leading to MSW offerings at off-campus sites in Portland, ME, Paxton, MA, Chicopee, MA, and in Kingston, MA.

Successfully recruited an outstanding research faculty and led the school to the highest ranking among programs at Boston College and a top 14 national ranking in US News and World Reports. Also, a top 10 ranking in publications, Council on Social Work Education publication.

Developed structure to improve recruitment of top students. The school consistently ranked as 2nd or 3rd most selective private program in the country.

Provided leadership for new initiatives, including the establishment of a doctoral program in social work and the establishment of joint degree programs in Law/Social Work, Management/Social Work, and Pastoral Counseling/Social Work. Non-degree program initiatives included international institutes in Hungary, Poland, Greece and Georgia on privatization in Eastern Europe; the development of a nationally recognized Continuing Education Program; and partnerships with the private sector, one of which led to the University Center for Corporate Community Relations.

Principal Investigator, or Co-Principal Investigator, of grants totaling approximately $2M.

Participated in fundraising initiatives, including two endowed Chairs ($2.5M) announced 1999 and a second to be announced.

Provided service to the university in capacities which included:

- Chair, Search Committee for the David S. Nelson Chair, Boston College (1995)
